

Trainer Bio: Larry Chatterton

Professional Experience

Larry started his career at one of his family's many small businesses and currently travels the world working with first-class premium brands. After spending over ten years starting and running several small businesses of his own, Larry was offered the franchise rights for Dale Carnegie Training in Portugal. Larry returned to the US to operate the Dale Carnegie franchise in Utah for several years before launching his own training company, Final3Feet. Through his speaking, consulting, and writing, he is creating exceptional service cultures at every level within a company.

Speaking Experience

As a keynote speaker, Larry has delivered from stages of every size, facilitated trainings, and played a key role in changing cultures across many industries. He is as comfortable with a small group of team members to an audience of thousands.

Education and Certifications

Larry earned a bachelor's degree from Utah State University in liberal arts with a minor in Portuguese.